

Please replace the ABSTRACT with the following amended ABSTRACT:

ABSTRACT

A padlock that can be unlocked by the owner of the padlock by dialing an unlocking number or by authorized security personals with a general key. The padlock mainly contains a lock body, a block, a shackle, a general locking ~~means~~ device and a private locking ~~means~~ device. The lock body has a first channel and a second channel therein. The block is engaged with the second channel. The block has a receptacle therein. The shackle has a longer arm slidably received in the first channel and a shorter arm ~~engagable~~ engageable with the receptacle of the block. The general locking ~~means~~ device is formed in the lock body for locking or unlocking the longer arm of the shackle. The private locking ~~means~~ device is formed in the lock body for controlling movements of the block in order the block to be engaged with or disengaged from the shorter arm of the shackle.